Purpose Vs Goal

- Purpose and Goal are almost similar but not the same
- Purpose and Goal are interlinked
- Goal is the "Target" or "Aim" while Purpose is the reason why one sets the target. In other words, Purpose influences the goal in one's life
- Once the goal is attained, it ceases to exist while Purpose moves with you and has no limitation and keep moving forward
- Goal is tangible and Purpose may be intangible or tangible in a continuum
- Purpose has a strong foundation of the individual's belief

FOUR ELEMENTS OF IKIGAI

Ikigai = 'Iki' means 'to live' and 'Gai' means 'Reason.'

Your Ikigai is your reason for living.

Ask yourself these questions:

1. What do you love doing?
2. What are you good at?
3. What are others prepared to pay for?
4. What does the world need more people to do?

Okinawa - the land of the centenarians

For every 100,000 inhabitants, Okinawa has centenarians – more than three times the numbers found in populations of the same size. Even by the standards of Japan, Okinawans are remarkable, with a 40% greater chance to 100 than other Japanese people.
